He Walks and Talks, Is Fairly Smart; Still Is not Human

MANSFIELD, Ohio—Found at last—the perfect man. Well, almost perfect, anyway. He walks, talks, smokes, is able to count and to recognize colors, and has never lost his temper.

The only catch is that he is not an ideal husband. In fact, he is not even human. He is Elektro, Westinghouse's mechanical man now touring the country with his dog, Sparko.

The latest, and more advanced, descendent of Televox, 1927, and Willie Vocalite, 1932, most widely-traveled mechanical man, Elektro was the brainchild of Joseph Melton Barnett.

Elektro has a vocabulary of 77 words, which he speaks with clarity and precision; he walks freely, moves his head, arm and fingers; counts on his fingers, says "red" or "green" when these colors are placed before his eyes; smokes cigarettes and, after a fashion, sings. He has a limitless amount of energy—getting it all from the nearest 110 volt socket.

Elektro would make a good football fullback. He has 18 inch feet and a chest expansion of 82 inches. His chest is always expanded in a manly fashion because, like the rest of his body, it is made of aluminum over a steel frame. He'll never be in need of a psychiatrist because his 60 pound brain consists of 82 electrical relays. These operate his nervous system of motors, levers, gears and chains. His spinal column and nervous system is made up of hundreds of miles of wires, which give him a total of 26 motions.

Sparko, his electrical dog, trots at his masters heels. He performs such tricks as begging, standing up, sitting down, barking and wagging his tail. Also made of aluminum, he is 17 inches high at the shoulders, 42 inches from the tip of his nose to the tip of his tail, and weighs 65 pounds. He is motivated by two motors, each rated at one-twentieth of a horsepower.

Pickpockets Land in Jail Because They Couldn't Pray

NEW YORK, N.Y.—A police officer who knew his prayers nabbed two men with long record of pickpocketing.

The officer said he spotted the two mingling with a holiday crowd in a cemetery, apparently trying to pick pockets.

Questioned, the men said they had gone to the cemetery to decorate a friend's grave and to pray. When the skeptical detective asked them to pray, the two conceded that they did not know how.

They will now have a chance to learn—in jail.

Girl Needs Good Excuse Before Missing Classes

OKLAHOMA CITY — Bernice Brown, a 14-year-old ninth grader in Capitol Hill junior high school here, really needs a good excuse to absent from her classes—or rather, to miss any of her classes.

Bernice, a victim of rheumatoid arthritis, has her education at her fingertips. Confined to bed, she recites her lessons or listens to her classmates at the school by pushing the button on a combination microphone-speaker installed at the bedside.

A telephone cable connects her home to the school and one of her classmates carries the microphone-speaker from room to room as classes change.

Pole Hopping Easy Task, Pilot Says After Flight

NEW YORK, N.Y.—The first pilot to hop across the north pole in a single engined plane recently called the flight a simple one, that airlines—or even the Russians might duplicate.

Charles F. Blair, Jr. a chief pilot for Pan American Airways, made his transpolar hop from Bardu, Norway, to Fairbanks, Alaska, in 10 hours and 30 minutes.

The pilot flew into New York after stopping at Fairbanks for an hour of sleep and a beef sandwich. He averaged 375 miles an hour on the flight from Fairbanks.

Flyers Believe Camels Being Used in Korea

KOREA—Briefing officers of the U.S. Fifth Air Force are no longer being stumped by the hump of a camel. Nowadays, when a pilot fresh from a mission says "I got me a camel today," the interrogator smiles and replies, "How nice. One hump or two?"

The fly-boys contend that they have been sighting—and sinking camels loaded with artillery pieces in the areas around Hungnam, but the infantry isn't convinced. One infantry general, when told the report, winked and said, "Tell them to send me a camel—I've always wanted one as a pet."

If there are no camels, the air boys are having a fine time destroying some sharp illusions. In fact, camels are cheicer targets than oxen, oxcarts or bicycles. One flyer, Lt. Norman Burtner, Des Moines, reportedly knocked off eight camels near Pyongyang.

News Around Town

By Mrs. Calvin Robinson

Here's one on "Little Henry:"

Little Henry went to a party in a brand-new suit. When he came home ragged holes had been cut into it with a pair of scissors. His mother gazed at him in consternation.

"What did you do to your beautiful new suit" she asked none too calmly.

Little Henry replied: "We decided to play grocery store and I was a piece of cheese."

Have any of you ever seen a Plantaine? I didn't until yesterday (in fact, had never heard of it). Mr. R. D. Robinson walked into our office with two Plantaines, which are called Horse Bananas in Cuba, he explained. Look just like bananas, only twice the size and they are sliced, buttered and cooked. Mr. Robinson said they were grown in Cuba and shipped to his brother-in-law, Dr. J. R. Danlis, of Richmond. If you haven't seen one, I suggest that you go by Robinson's and take a look.
